EDMONTON REPORT

EDMONTON: Don't look for mass inoculations of gamma globulin, the new weapon against poliomyelitis, in Alberta this year. Supplies are so limited as to be almost non-existent and the same situation exists in all the provinces.

Although the provincial health department has received a supply of the serum and distributed it to district health nurses it will be used to immunize only children who have come in close contact with confirmed cases of the disease and expectant mothers. In most cases the restriction will mean inoculations in families where polio has struck.

Despite the health authorities emphasizing that only special circumstances will qualify persons for the serum injections, health officers probably will be deluged with calls from worried parents should polio incidence increase appreciably this year. About 50 cases have been reported in the province since the first of the year.

Developed by an American doctor and subject to many tests on animals and humans, gamma globulin is a blood derivative. It is made from the blood of persons who have recovered from polio.

One of the difficulties in finding adequate supplies is the fact that one pint of blood is required for each dose of the serum.

The discovery came after many years of research, costing millions of dollars, by medical scientists in the U.S., Canada and other countries. Following hard on the heels of gamma globulin was the announcement of a new vaccine, which will be tested in wide areas of the States this year.

Alberta health officials believe it will be four to five years before the vaccine is in sufficient supply to allow mass immunization programs to be carried out.

They are skeptical of the value of gamma globulin. Besides the amount of blood required to produce one injection, they point out that the immunity lasts only five to six weeks and a person would require more than one injection to carry him through the polio season. At the same time one cannot lose sight of the program that its development represents.

Effectiveness of the treatment was demonstrated when a polio outbreak threatened Montgomery, Alabama. The spread of the disease was curbed after 31,000 youngsters, nine and under, were inoculated at a cost of some $1,000,000.

Final stage of the federal election campaign began this week with the closing of nominations on Monday in most sections of Alberta. They closed earlier in some northern ridings.

Reviewing the reports of statements made by party leaders in meetings all across the country indicates that they are straying very little from the platforms enunciated when the campaign opened. In Alberta the campaign has been unmarked by the spectacular, candidates finding their largest listening audiences by radio and newspaper reports of sparsely-attended political meetings.

Out of the speeches that by this time have become largely reiteration of promises, sometimes recorded, sometimes not, the reader can find amusing highlights.

For instance, both the CCF and Progressive Conservatives are pledging aid to home-hungry Canadians, but only the CCF has promised to furnish these proposed homes, along with old ones, with "a good kitchen sink and a first-class bathroom."

Meanwhile, a retired B. C. M.L.A. campaigning for election to the House of Commons, Harold Winch, claimed recently that it is the CCF against the field while an eastern newspaper writer suggested that it is the Liberal record against the field. Come to think of it, Conservatives and Social Crediters are against the field, too. Don't imagine they expect any help from other parties.

According to Prime Minister St. Laurent the opposing parties are not promising anything the Liberal government is not planning to do. In answer to CCF pledges for a national health scheme, the prime minister replied that his government will institute one as soon as defence spending can be cut.

Same thing goes for the Conservatives' big tax cut promise, while the prime minister adds the party has no monopoly on desires to guard provincial autonomy—an issue brought up each election

At Liberal Meeting Here

Wheat Marketing Policy Discussed by M. M. Porter

M. M. Porter, Q.C., of Calgary, solicitor for the Alberta Wheat Pool, gave a most interesting and informative address on "Wheat and the International Wheat Agreement" while speaking on behalf of J. J. McIntyre, Liberal candidate for the Macleod Constituency in the Legion Hall on Monday evening, with 45 in attendance at the meeting.

M. R. Morrison, O.B.E., of Vulcan, acted as chairman and introduced the candidate, J. J. McIntyre, outlining his long and successful career in coal mine management previous to his retirement last year.

Mr. McIntyre stated that two weeks from today we would be electing a Government but that there were only two truly national parties and that these were the only two which could hope to form a party. He then reviewed briefly what the Liberals have done under the headings of "leadership in World Affairs, Maintain Peace, World Trade, Assistance to less fortunate countries, Expansion of our markets, Social Security, Provision for security in case of reverses in industry, Prices support, etc., summarizing by saying that the Liberal policy and program of Social Security has put Canada in the forefront of the world in looking after its citizens. The Liberals, he said, have carried us from a depression to a peak that is the envy of most of the world, and that in future they would be guided by the same sound ideals and principles if re-elected.

This constituency, he concluded, has a wide variety of resources, all of which need government attention from time to time and this could best be obtained by a representative who was a member of that party which is doing the legislating. Is it not time for us who have always been on the Opposition side, to get on the side of the Government? We now have no voice where policies are formed. If elected, I will devote myself to the welfare of this constituency, he said.

M. M. Porter, Q.C., was introduced as an authority on Wheat and Agricultural problems who recently returned from nearly three months at the International Wheat Conference in Washington as Solicitor for the Wheat Pool.

Mr. Porter said it is a privilege to live in this country and to see agriculture in good and bad times and to realize the significance of agriculture. Agriculture is the backbone of this country and will be for many generations to come.

We have two problems, he continued, growing and marketing—the first being up to nature largely and the second problem is man-made.

It is a great privilege, granted to few people today, to elect our own candidates, make our own laws, and so on. Taxes will cost you more for the rest of your life than any other single thing. Taxes are our greatest expense because we want it that way. Social security now costs three times that of the total government prior to the war. We ought to understand the policy.

year in Quebec.

Zaniest stunt occurred in Vancouver, where there is a great move to have a new bridge built between the big airport on an island in the Fraser river delta and Vancouver.

When the prime minister's party landed at the airport and started across the bridge to the city, a procession of tugs and barges through this open draw in the bridge, held it up for more than half-an-hour. Later it was discovered it was the brainchild of reporters on one of Vancouver's new papers in an attempt to bring the prime minister's attention to the need for federal aid for a new bridge.

The stunt brought the prime minister apologies from Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett of B. C., as well as a verbal rap on the knuckles for the newshounds.

tes made so that we can intelligently exercise our franchise.

Now to the Wheat picture. Wheat is in jeopardy. There is nothing of the same importance as wheat and what will happen to it later on. There is nothing that happened to your fathers, which they fought and overcame, that can't happen again. We sold wheat on the open market and found it unsatisfactory, and then started the pooling system and got caught in 1929. When customers couldn't buy, world imports of wheat dropped from 350 million to 350 million bushels from 1929 to 1931. When wheat gets above a certain price customers can't buy and they substitute other foods such as potatoes. After the first war and through the '20's, there was a great deal of money being loaned in Europe by America, and our wheat was paid for in a large measure by that money. The price of our wheat was high, 1929 arrived and those advances came to an end. That lending stopped and Europe found itself unable to get the dollars to buy our wheat. We then organized wheat central marketing.

The Bennett government organized the first wheat board. The Liberal government took over the Bennett stabilization program and made it into a wheat board whose sole object was to liquidate the then existing surplus of wheat. That was done, and with a profit of $9 million. It was thought then that we could go back to what was called the free market but it was found that if we did that we not only could not sell it but we would simply break the price without increasing demand. Operating with a floor of 80¢ a bushel alongside the

Possible In Few Years

Export Gas Line Would Serve Towns This Line

There is some possibility that within the next few years Blackie Brant, Vulcan, Champion and Carmangay residents may be burning natural gas.

A submission from the Edmonton and Calgary gas companies to the Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board states that new gas sources to supply the Calgary-Lethbridge market will be needed by 1957 and the Calgary gas company must plan now to meet the situation.

A new gas pipeline, connecting Edmonton and Calgary, is proposed with the forty miles to be laid next year and another 140 miles within the following two years. This new line would pick up gas from fields along the way and would supply the towns between Edmonton and Calgary. This would meet Calgary needs.

To meet Lethbridge needs, the plan calls for the extension of the new line southeast to the vicinity of Carmangay, serving Blackie, Brant, Vulcan and Champion on the way, and tying in near Carmangay with a proposed export line from Pincher Creek east.

Surplus gas made available by the new Edmonton-Calgary pipeline would be sold to the export market if and when it develops, and it is this plan that would necessitate the building of the new line from Calgary to Carmangay.

If you are 8 years or older, make sure you are out to swim on Monday morning. Mosquito Model Aids in Malaria Fight

The British insect expert will help instruct Lebanese sanitary inspectors who study at the new Public Health Department of the University of Beirut. Mrs. Jones, who designed the model, looks on.

Local Elevators Plugged

Open Quota For Delivery Grain Extended 15 Days

When the wheat delivery quota at Vulcan and other points in the county was thrown open last week elevators were plugged with wheat within two days.

Since then, only a very few railway cars have been available for shipping wheat out and it did not appear that much additional wheat could be accepted at local elevators before the end of the crop year, July 31.

For this reason, the Vulcan and District Board of Trade on Tuesday sent an urgent wire to the Canadian Wheat Board, asking that the present crop year be extended twenty days. This would give farmers an opportunity to deliver more wheat as space becomes available in the elevators and still be selling under the 1952-53 quota.

A reply, received on Wednesday from W. Riddell, Commissioner, Canadian Wheat Board, advises that the Board has issued instructions on Tuesday authorizing extension of the open quota for delivery of wheat and oats to August 15.

May Be Some Adjustments of County Boundaries

In the course of its survey in the southern part of the Province, the Co-Terminus Boundary Commission recently appointed by the Government to make recommendations in respect to revision of boundaries of municipal districts and school divisions, in order that the boundaries of these local government bodies would co-incide, met with the County of Vulcan councillors at the county office last week. Members of the Commission are W. J. Dick, Edmonton, Chairman; A. W. Morrison, Chief Municipal Inspector, Edmonton; Dr. A. Reeves of the Department of Education, Edmonton; J. Griffiths, Aden, Alberta representing the School Trustees of the Province, and J. M. McKay, Brant, representing the Municipal Councilors.

It was pointed out that the area now comprising the County of Vulcan is already co-terminus for Municipal and School services, but it was necessary to make some adjustments to the County boundaries to fit in with the plans for rearranging boundaries of adjacent areas.

The policy of the Commission, according to Mr. Dick, Chairman, is to visit the areas and discuss with the local councillors and trustees, the changes which are being recommended and to obtain views on the most workable unit from a municipal and school standpoint. While it is likely that there will be slight revisions of the County boundary, no announcement of any changes is being made until the recommendations have been considered by the Government, and definite decisions arrived at.

Bingo Proceeds For Swimming Pool

The date—Wednesday, Aug. 5—has now been set for the first "giant bingo" in Vulcan. Sponsored by the Lions Club, the evening of bingo will be held at the skating rink starting at 8 p.m. sharp.

Grand prize is a 15 cu. ft. home freezer and 14 other prizes are also listed on the advertisement appearing in this issue of the Advocate.

Net proceeds of the bingo evening will go to the Memorial Swimming Pool and a large crowd is expected to be in attendance.

Teachers Needed For District Schools

The current shortage of teachers is felt in almost every school district and division of the province and the County of Vulcan is no exception.

Teachers are still required for Milo, Arrowwood, Reid Hill and Ensign and present indications are that it will be difficult to fill the positions open at these points.

County school officials would greatly appreciate securing the services of any former school teachers who would be willing to take over rooms at any of these points for the coming term. Those interested are asked to get in touch with A. L. Schrag, Superintendent of Schools, at the County Office in Vulcan, by phone, letter, or by seeing him personally.

Permits More Easily Obtained

Ease Shooting Regulations For Protection of Crops

Sweeping changes in regulations that will strengthen the hand of the farmer in dealing with ducks and other migratory bird depredations were revealed last week by Resources Minister Winters. The new regulations passed by Order-in-Council make permits to deal with duck depredations more easily obtainable by empowering local provincial game officers or members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to issue them on areas up to two square miles. Where actual or threatened damage is more widespread the new provisions also allow the chief game officer of a province the right to authorize all residents in specified districts to use firearms to scare, and if necessary to kill marauding birds.

In recent years many western farmers have suffered serious losses when the harvest season has coincided with the arrival of millions of migrating grain-hungry ducks. Permits to kill the ducks were issued to farmers and to persons named by them as assistants, but often the damage was so widespread that individual permits could not be issued fast enough, and a general permit covering a wide area was issued from Ottawa. The new regulations make it possible to deal with this problem much more promptly and effectively.

Shooting to protect crops, however, must be confined to the actual crop area. It is forbidden to shoot ducks on stubble from which the crop has been harvested or in marshes on the pretext of protecting crops. This provision benefits both ducks and farmers as it tends to force the ducks from unharvested grain and allows them sanctuary in neighbouring marshes and harvested stubble fields where they may feed without molestation.

The new provisions do not authorize anybody to shoot birds on any property without the property-owner's permission, and the number of game birds which any person may possess at one time is limited by the Migratory Bird Regulations.

A large percentage of the damage done by migratory birds in Canada is caused by ducks eating and trampling grain crops. The new regulations, however, can be applied to cover other kinds of migratory bird problems such as the injury caused to orchards by robins, and the presence of large flocks of gulls at airports which endanger aeroplanes. All complaints in such cases should now be made to provincial game officers or the nearest Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment, and not to the federal authorities in Ottawa.

Many Farmers Get No Pay At All

In every crop years there are thousands of farm families in various parts of Canada who get no pay at all.

Farming is a great gamble in most parts of Canada in any year but it is a good gamble over a period of years except under protracted abnormal weather or international marketing conditions.

No other vocation involves higher risks of money, health and well being.

Urban workers who get paid for every hour of work done cannot realize what it means for a whole family to work hard with great skill and resourcefulness for long hours each day for a whole year, only to end up with nothing for their investment and toil.

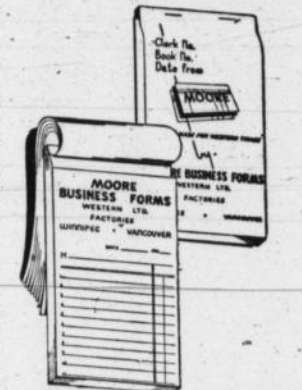

Farm families who love farm life are willing to take all the risks, to do without in bad years, to save and invest in cost-reducing equipment in good years, to improve their soil and their methods, to better their homes and farmsteads, to educate self-reliant citizens.

Farm families contribute most to the common good.

A FARM POLICY FOR YOU!

A PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT
AT OTTAWA will give you ACTION on the following:

1. 100% Wheat Board.
2. Stronger Producer representation on the Wheat Board at policy levels.
3. Initial grain prices based on costs of production.
4. Advances on grain stored on the farm.
5. Immediate steps to restore and expand world markets for farm products.
6. Floor Prices related to farm production costs and announced well in advance of each crop season.

These are sound practical policies.
Canadian Agriculture needs these policies.

The present Government has refused to put these policies into effect ...

WE CAN... WE WILL!

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE

On March 23, 1953, John Diefenbaker said "I believe that Canadian farmers are asking for fair farm levels that bear some relationship to the prices of the products the farmer has to purchase. Therefore, I intend to move an amendment very similar to the one this party has moved on previous occasions, that:

"In the opinion of this house consideration should be given by the government to the advisability of introducing during the present session legislation to provide floor prices for agricultural products at such levels as to ensure producers a fair price-cost relationship."

This motion was voted down by the Liberal majority.

Scaring Off Waterfowl

(By J. W. Stambaugh)

The Canadian Wild Life Branch of the Department of Resources and Development are struggling with the problem of increasing the population of wild ducks and geese in Canada, and at the same time give protection to farmers' crops.

Damage by waterfowl to the Prairie Provinces has greatly increased in the last few years, and in some areas farmers have suffered losses as high as 50% in some fields, and losses of 5% to 10% are not uncommon. Many of our city sportsmen who are anxious to increase the duck population, are either unaware or don't care about the heavy losses of the farmers in these areas.

During the 1930's, the duck population decreased rapidly, and for a time it looked as if they might become extinct like the passenger pigeons. During these years, I have known many farmers who plowed around ducks' nests, shot crows and magpies and encouraged the children to rob their nests. They are now beginning to wonder if they made a mistake, since the duck population has increased to such an extent that they are becoming a menace in many districts. Fortunately, while the duck population has been increasing, we have had a cycle of good crops.

Some of the most fantastic devices for scaring ducks have been proposed by some of our city sportsmen and long-haired conservationists. Most of these are both complicated, costly and unworkable unless you are going to call in the Army and Navy to operate them. I quote one of the simpler ones recommended.

"In combatting depredations of migratory waterfowl in swathed or stooked fields of small grain, there are various types of devices which have proved to be quite effective. One of the most easily constructed of these is the ordinary scarecrow. The scarecrow should be erected or placed in the field as soon as swathing or stooking operations begin. If this device is used it is absolutely necessary that several scarecrows be erected and well distributed around the field. It is recommended that not less than ten per 160 acres be erected to secure maximum benefits. It is extremely important that the field be closely watched both at daybreak and dusk to determine when or if waterfowl attempt to feed in the field in question. If depredation trouble is expected a scaring permit can be obtained well in advance of harvesting operations. At the first indication of waterfowl attempting to feed in the field, dispersal or frightening operations should start as authorized by permit, and preferably adjacent to or in close proximity to the scarecrows. This operation should be continued until the waterfowl have been discouraged; usually this takes about two or three days' work consisting of approximately one hour in the a.m. at daybreak and one hour in the p.m. at dusk. In any event the scarecrows should be moved every two or three days in order that the waterfowl do not become accustomed to them in the same locations. This moving operation is an absolute must if the scarecrows are to maintain their effectiveness." (End of quotation.)

And again, I quote:

"...discourage waterfowl from committing depredation in the field in question. In this connection experiments have shown a 22 calibre rifle using 22 long rifle ammunition to be much more effective than a shotgun in discouraging or dispersing migratory birds from a field. The whine or whistle of the bullet will frighten waterfowl at a distance of one half mile when directed in close proximity to them if they are in the air." (End of quotation.)

Now anyone with the slightest knowledge of fire arms knows how dangerous is a 22 calibre long rifle. A 22 long rifle will carry up and kill an animal or person at a half-mile, whereas a shotgun might injure but would not kill at over sixty yards. As far as the scaring possibilities go, they are practically nil. You can take a 22 rifle and often pick off birds on a one without scaring the rest of the flock, but the blast of a shotgun will scare ducks off a quarter section.

Here are some more recommendations made to the Department:

1. "Install scarecrows or frightening devices immediately upon the start of swathing or stooking operations and move them every two or three days.

2. "Keep a close watch at daybreak and dusk to determine when and if waterfowl are going to feed in a field. It is extremely difficult to get them out of a field after they have fed there for a few days.

3. "A couple of hours effort exerted daily for two or three days when waterfowl first start to feed in a field may well mean the difference between harvesting all of your crop or only part of it.

4. "It is essential that dispersal operations as authorized by a scaring permit be carried on together with the erection of the scarecrows when depredations are about to be committed. If maximum results are to be expected.

5. "It is extremely important that scarecrows be removed from the field as soon as the harvest is completed; this will make available additional feeding areas in which no damage will be experienced." (End of quotation.)

If a farmer's stock is attacked by a coyote, or his hens by a weasel or a skunk, he shoots them. Just why should he be asked by anybody to go to all the trouble and expense of installing these various types of devices to protect his crop so somebody else can have the pleasure of shooting ducks. It is about time our wild life conservationists thought of that angle. The method used last year of allowing farmers to get permits from the RCMP for others besides himself to enter upon his land and scare the ducks away by shooting at them with shotguns was the most successful to date, and should be continued.

Many farmers haven't even the time to shoot the ducks themselves, and how are they going to spare a great deal more time purchasing, building and installing various gadgets and devices for scaring them away.

There should be no hesitation by the Department in giving the RCMP permission to issue permits the same as last year, and supposing the farmer who feeds the ducks gets the first crack at them — what's wrong with that,

Known as the "Lakeside Inn Tuna Trophy" the silver masterpiece stands more than 20" high and depicts one of the battling bluefins breaking the surface and will be awarded annually to the contestant entering the largest catch.

Effect of Heavy Surface Trash on Wheat Yields

The effect of large quantities of trash left on the surface after seeding on the wheat crop has been studied at the Lethbridge Experimental Station for the past three years. Studies have been conducted, in which quantities of straw, ranging from no cover up to four tons per acre, have been spread on the plots immediately after seeding. These studies have been supplemented by observations in fields where heavy unsprayed combine swaths have been tilled into the seedbed before seeding. Seeders also were used that seeded underneath the swaths, leaving the swath practically undisturbed on the surface.

Studies at this station indicate rates of straw cover on the seedbed, up to three tons per acre, did not influence the yield, date of maturity or plant height. According to D. T. Anderson of the Lethbridge Station, this rate of cover is in excess of any that will be normally handled on the seedbed of the Canadian prairies. Rates cover above three tons per acre have reduced yields slightly and delayed maturity a few days.

Observations were made in fields where combine swaths had an estimated cover in excess of four tons per acre. Yield depressions were found where the swaths were tilled into the soil or where they were left on the surface. The average was 3.5 bushels per acre when compared to the areas not covered by swaths. Slightly delayed maturity was noted where the swaths were heaviest. The yield reductions on the swath areas represent an average reduction of from three-quarters to one bushel per acre for the total field area.

At present prices of wheat, it is worth while to use a straw spreader or straw chopper attachment on the combine if the field is to be put back into crop the next year. If the swath has not been spread, it is advisable to utilize other means of spreading the swaths before seeding.

The results of this work indicate that the normal quantities of trash can be kept on the surface of the seedbed for protection against erosion. However, a better job of seeding and higher yields will be obtained if the trash is well spread over the soil.

buy Canadian wheat. There is an ever increasing number of Canadian Trade Missions all over the world creating goodwill and removing obstacles to greater Canadian markets with the result that Canada's trade has quadrupled since 1946.

As far as physical problems in marketing grain, wheat in good shape can be stored for long periods and presents no problem, but the abundance of poor wheat such as we had two years ago presents a major problem. This was overcome in large part by teaching Japan and India how to mill this low grade wheat. No facility in the world except the Wheat Board could have marketed that poor wheat. We have a large carry-over of wheat now and if the present crop comes off we will have the greatest surplus we have ever had.

We need not be too disturbed by this surplus. We had 949 million bushels last year but the surplus in relation to demand is not as large as it would seem but still tremendous. Someone has to buy and hold it. This cannot be the farmer and it can not be the speculator who takes a long chance for a high reward. In the depression Britain had five buyers, during the war only one, now five again.

Currency controls in each country have a great effect, and only the Wheat Board can deal with governments and Cereal Boards.

We have never been faced with as grave a problem of strong surplus and trying to hold the price. Wheat is a drought area plant which grows in semi-arid regions and because of that we will always have periods of glut and scarcity. That is the core of our wheat problem.

In this election only two parties have a chance of forming a government. None of the other splinter parties will have enough members to form a government so their policies do not matter, the speaker said. That leaves the Liberals and Conservatives. You know what the Liberal program and policy are. As to the Conservative program, "you don't know and they don't say." Conservative Leader Drew in his last campaign and since that time in Parliament has said that the Wheat Board smacks of Fascism and is an invasion of private rights. He believes it should be available to those who want it and that the open market should operate as well, Mr. Porter stated. That would leave us exactly where Premier Bennett left it. The Wheat Board expires in another two years unless the Government of that day renews it and continues its life. The Liberals will prohibit the open market or alternative marketing methods. John I. McFarland says the two systems cannot live together—the last year we did we lost $60 million. In the open market you can sell wheat that doesn't exist.

Now as to the political aspects of the Macleod riding—Mr. Porter continued, when I came West in 1911 from Ontario the East was very much aware of the West and were quite conscious of the market it provided them. Now they are highly industrialized and quite unaware of the West despite the fact that the 1951 Census showed enough farm machinery on western farms to buy out the Imperial Oil and leave a $100 million over,

"We are now approaching or must expect hard times because our history and the very nature of wheat raising is a series of busts and booms. Governments are not just machines—the human element enters in. Under our system the Cabinet Ministers formulate much of the policies and carry them out. Members see their Ministers to see what he can get done for his constituency," Mr. Porter remarked. "And so we come to the Wheat Board. In two years who is going to say our people need the Wheat Board? We in the West, through a series of protests, have less representation than any time since 1926. In our best interests we better get someone down there who will get the ear of the Government and will sit in with those who formulate the policies. Members of the opposition are back seat drivers and can never hope to help in the solution of our problems. It is a luxury we cannot afford to indulge. We can't send boys to Ottawa that will never come to bat. The best they'll get is a seat in the bleachers."

open market the Wheat Board lost over $60 million. This is the plan the Tories propose now.

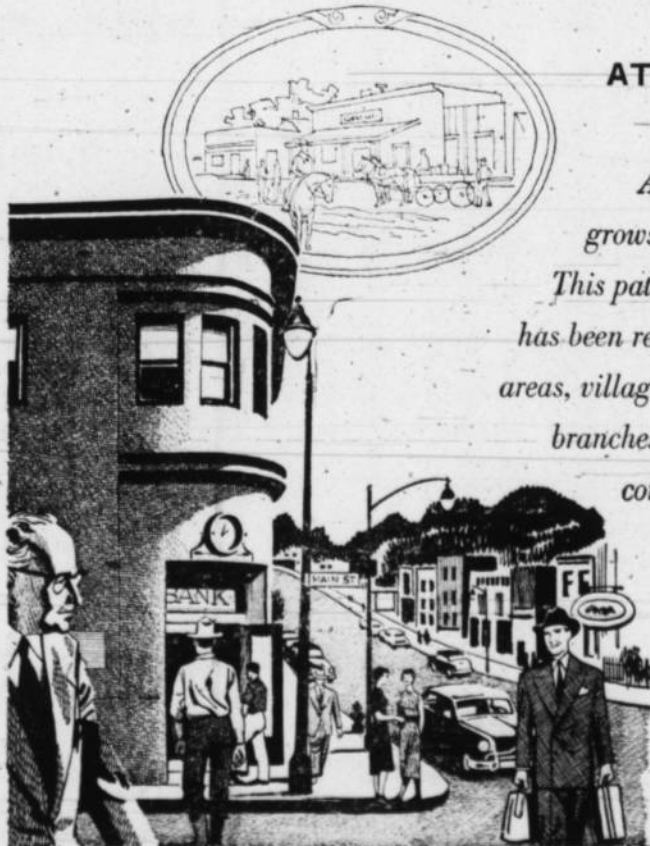

The Wheat Board is the agent of the farmer and has marketed a tremendous amount of wheat. There is considerable misunderstanding of the Wheat Board and its functions but that is all it is—the agent of the farmer.

Now let us get the background of the International Wheat Agreement. The wide swings of prices in wheat is just as disastrous to the buyers as to our growers. It wrecked their economy just as it did ours. It was the recognition of this fact which led to the formation of the International Wheat Agreement. Representatives of the various countries met twice but failed to agree, but finally succeeded five years ago.

The Agreement is simple but broadly misunderstood. It simply prevents wheat prices from going so low as to be a disaster for the producer, and prevents them from going so high as to be a disaster to the consumer. The buyer is compelled to take wheat at the floor price and our covenant is that when it gets to the ceiling the producer must deliver. Between the floor and ceiling price they are as free to trade as they ever were. The confusion has been that the ceiling is the price because we have been selling at the ceiling price. The criticism has been that when we were selling at the ceiling price we were selling at less than the world price.

At the recent Washington wheat conference, the British delegates said the inclusion of nearly six million bushels at the floor price took it off the market because the world knew it was sold. The effect of this, they said, was to maintain higher prices. It was this, and not the publicized 5c a bushel, that resulted in Britain refusing to sign the new agreement, said Mr. Porter. This opinion of the British delegates was the strongest endorsement of the success of the Wheat Board and the International Wheat Agreement from the standpoint of the producer.

The problem today is to provide some means by which our customers can pay for the wheat. This is one way the Wheat Board can help most—by facilitating the large trades. An example of this was a 20 million bushel sale to Belgium made possible by removing the prohibitive tariff against glass, and in another case the United States made available a loan of $175 million so that Britain could Saturday afternoon, July 26, the Community Hall in Champion was the scene of a very pretty bridal shower given in honor of a popular bride-elect of August, Miss Jean Patterson. The Dining Room of the hall was almost filled with ladies from the town and surrounding district who had gathered to present Miss Patterson with many lovely and useful gifts. Mrs. Russell Hegland on behalf of the ladies presented the guest of honor with a beautiful red rose corsage. A wagon, drawn by Richard Siler and Nancy Wolfe, carried a model of an elevator, and Sharon Davey rode atop the gifts. Green and yellow was the color scheme for the decorations, and the bride's table held a miniature elevator. The hostess gift was a white baby chenille bedspread. Miss Patterson very graciously thanked her friends for the lovely gifts, after which a delicious lunch was served.

George Clever Wright

Friends and neighbors gathered in the Community Hall on Monday July 27 to pay their last respects to a member of one of the oldest pioneer families of the Cleverville district, George Clever Wright. Mr. Wright was born in Milo, Ia. in 1895, coming with his parents to this district in the early pioneer days. Kirkcaldy W. I.

The Kirkcaldy W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Borwn Macdonald on Friday evening with a good attendance of members and guests from Champion W.I. There were 35 in attendance.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Dorothy Dawhan, editor of the Nanion News. Her topic was "Woman is a good Citizen." She divided the group into three buzz sessions, each with a chairman and recorder and a discussion was held. Mrs. Dowhan stressed women to vote and take an interest in today's politics and events. The political field, she said, was a vast field and a great opportunity for women interested in executive work. A woman's task as a good citizen began in the home then broadened out into the community.

Despite the rainy conditions, lunch was served in the form of a barbecue on the lawn. The lovely flowers and trees were admired by all.

So This is Kirkcaldy!

This is an article printed in the Free Press, Kirkcaldy, Scotland.

"How many local people know that there is a Kirkcaldy in Canada? That question must have crossed the mind of Mr. J. Kirkwood, head postmaster, Kirkcaldy, Scotland, when he had a surprise visit last week from a man who had been postmaster of a small Canadian town of the same name.

"The unexpected caller was Mr. A. J. Maisey who is ex-postmaster of Kirkcaldy in Alberta." Visiting this country for the Coronation, he was in Edinburgh and, realizing he was so near to the original Kirkcaldy, he made the short trip across the Forth to pay his respects at the G.P.O. in Hunter Street. He also conveyed greetings from Mrs. K. Carnegie, the present postmistress in Kirkcaldy, Alberta.

"Mr. Maisey, an Englishman, who emigrated to Canada 40 years ago, was accompanied by his grand son. Needless to say, they both thoroughly enjoyed their short visit to the Lang Town of Kirkcaldy, Fife!"

things which are considered essential in a house. Some idea of the cost of various items is necessary so that the best choice is made during the planning stage, with some assurance that the completed house will not cost more than estimated. By avoiding and eliminating the more costly features the cost may be reduced.

The major items entering into the initial cost of a modern house are listed below. Group A includes those items generally included in the cost of a house. Those in Group B vary widely with the various home owners, but should be included in the total cost of house construction.

GROUP A: General construction; Heating; Plumbing; Electrical wiring and fixtures; Painting; Hardware; Contractors profit.

GROUP B: Land; Landscaping drives etc.; Interior decoration; Home furnishings; Septic tank and water supply for rural homes; Interest on capital; Architects fee.

The cost of materials purchased at the lumber yard will amount to about 35 percent of the total cost of construction. To the lumber dealers bill must be added the cost of paint, sand and gravel, some hardware and heating, plumbing and electrical supplies.

This will bring the cost of all materials required on the site to 50 percent of the total. All labour costs on the site will be 40 percent and the contractors profit and overhead about 10 percent.

The following are average percentages of total cost for services:

General construction	80.5
Heating	9.0
Plumbing	7.5
Electrical	3.0

The basic framework of the house including foundations, all walls and roof, but without the stairs and millwork makes up about one-half the total cost. The outside walls themselves make up 16 percent of the cost and the foundation, exterior walls and roof together only 28 percent.

Many people attempt by using unusual materials and methods of construction to reduce the cost of erecting outside walls. Even if they could be erected at no cost at all the saving would only be 16 percent.

No drastic lowering of the cost of a complete modern house can be effected by concentrating on any one of the items listed. Small reductions may be made by careful planning.

The internationally famous hypnotist and magician, Dr. Zomb states that the East Indian Mystics accomplish many of their wonders through this power of hypnotism, and that among his many mysteries he will actually show members of the audience how they, themselves can duplicate such magic feats of the mind. He explains that his show is really 3 shows in 1, each part dealing with a different phase of mystery. The first with spectacular illusion, featuring 1001 Magical Wonders gathered from the four corners of the earth. Part two exhibits feats of Mental Wizardry that have astounded audiences throughout the world, and to climax his thrilling show, in part three, Ormond McGill "The Man Called Dr. Zomb" will present his remarkable and hilarious demonstrations in hypnotism—in which any person attending the performance will be invited to come on to the stage and participate in the exciting experiments. Dr. Zomb claims that his feats in hypnotism are 100 percent authentic, and offers $50,000.00 to any person proving that he uses confederates in any of his remarkable feats.

Farm Electrical Appliance Consumption

Anyone considering a farm electrification program is interested in purchasing appliances that will prove useful in the farming operations and will provide conveniences in the farm home. The monthly power bill for the operation of these appliances, should be directly chargeable to the project for which they are purchased, whether it be poultry, hogs, dairying, beef cattle, the machine shop and so on. As hydro bills are based on the total kilowatts consumed it is feasible, if the power consumption of each appliance is known approximately, to allot the estimated cost to each enterprise, says M. E. Dodds of the Swift Current Experimental Station.

If a dairy is operated on this farm, the 2 and 3 unit milking machines will require about 100 watts per cow per day. Thus a five cow herd will use a little over 16 kilowatt hours per month. The cream separator consumes about 1 kilowatt hour per 1,000 pounds of milk or about 1½ to 2 kilowatt hours per month.

Handling and processing equipment, for both farm and household use, is varied. Freezing and cold storage equipment will operate on 2 to 4 kilowatt hours per day, while the kitchen refrigerator will require 1 to 3 kilowatt hours, depending on the size, for the same period of time. Feed grinders and hammermills will provide freshly ground feed for ½ to 1 kilowatt hours of power per 100 bushels of grain processed. Fanning mills will clean grain and use 10 kilowatt hours per 100 bushels put through. Grain elevators, driven by electric motors, will place grain in bins or trucks and use only 2 kilowatt hours per 1,000 bushels.

A water pressure system will deliver water to the household, or to the livestock and poultry, at the cheap rate of 2 kilowatt hours per day, and provide a convenience for both the housewife and livestock man. Where individual water pumps are installed, the consumption is only 1 kilowatt hour per day. The farm garden can be irrigated from these same systems. To provide hot water for the kitchen and bath, an immersion heater can be installed that will operate for 8 to 15 kilowatt hours per day, depending upon the size of the unit and the amount of water used. Water warmers for livestock will consume 1 to 5 kilowatt hours per day, again depending upon the amount of water used.

The machine shop, which is the centre of construction and machinery repair, will find use for small motors to operate power tools. The ¼-horsepower motor is very versatile and can be easily moved from machine to machine. These motors use ½ to 1 kilowatt hour per day of average use. Electric welders are very popular and, based on a year of use, the consumption per day, averages ¼ kilowatt hour.

Household appliances are so many and varied that the daily consumption of all but a few of the more common ones would be hard to obtain. Electric ranges consume 4 to 8 kilowatt hours of power per day, washing machines 3 to 9 kilowatt hours per month, vacuum cleaners 1 to 1½ kilowatt hours per month and iron 4 kilowatt hours per month.

In the table of precedence for Canada, the Prime Minister ranks immediately following the Governor-General officer administering the government.

MELROE pickup today!

MELROE '53

Yes, many farmers are going to follow the advice of their neighbors and switch to the Melroe Pickup this year. It picks much cleaner and is much easier to operate than any other pickup on the market. The cost is not much when the pickup will save you the full amount on as little as 60 acres—ask the man who has used one.
